Part IX – Proceedings in Case of Simple Offences and Breaches of Duty

73. Accessories

 - (b) a person who does any act or makes any omission for the purpose of enabling or aiding another person to commit the offence;
 - (c) a person who abets another person in committing the offence;
 - (d) a person who instigates another person to commit the offence.
- (2) A person who instigates another person to do an act or make an omission of such a nature that, if he had himself done the act or made the omission, the act or omission would have constituted a simple offence on his part, is guilty of the same offence as if he had himself done the act or made the omission, and may be charged with himself committing the offence.
- (3) A person who is alleged to have instigated, aided, or abetted the commission of a simple offence may be convicted upon a complaint charging him with having committed the offence, or upon a complaint charging him with

74. Attempts

- (1) Where, upon the hearing of a complaint for a simple offence, the complete commission of the offence charged is not proved but the evidence establishes that the defendant attempted to commit that offence, he may be convicted of such an attempt.
- (2) An attempt to commit a simple offence is an act or omission done or made with intent to commit that offence, and forming part of a series of events which if it were not interrupted would constitute the actual commission of the offence.
- (3) The offence of attempting to commit a simple offence may be committed, although the offender voluntarily desists from the actual commission of the simple offence itself, and whether under the circumstances it was possible to commit that simple offence or not.
- (4) The point at which a series of events as mentioned in subsection (2) begins depends upon the circumstances of each particular case.
- (5) Whether an act or omission is, or is not, too remote to constitute an attempt to commit a simple offence is a question of law.
- (6) Where, upon the hearing of a complaint for an attempt to commit a simple offence, the evidence establishes that the defendant has completed the

 - (b) inform the person that he or she is entitled to have the proceedings in respect of the charge adjourned in order to consider a course of action or to obtain legal advice in relation to the charge.
- (1A) The justices are not required to comply with subsection (1)(a) if they are satisfied that the defendant has received a copy of, and understands, the nature of the charge.
- (2) Nothing in subsection (1) requires the justices to explain to the person referred to in that subsection the pleas which may be entered under subsection (5).

Justices Act 1959
Act No. 77 of 1959

74B. Procedure on adjournment

- (a) remand the defendant in custody; or
 - (b) admit the defendant to bail; or

When a person within the view or hearing of a justice uses a threat or other language, or does an act, on proof of which he might on complaint made be required to enter into recognizance of the peace, the justice may forthwith, and without further proof, require that person to enter into such recognizance of the peace as the justice deems sufficient, and in default of his doing may commit him to prison as provided in section 99.

103. Power to release persons imprisoned in default of finding sureties if complainant dies

104. Recognizances not to be discharged by release from complainant

 - (b) that the party so bound as principal has done or threatened to do an act the doing or threatening of which would, if proved against him, have been a ground for calling upon him to enter into such a recognizance – and upon further proof that a notice in writing, signed by the person seeking to put the recognizance in force, has, 7 clear days before the application is made, been personally served upon or left at the usual place of abode of the party or each of the parties, if more than one,

- (2) Upon adjudging the recognizance to be forfeited, the court may order the persons bound thereby, whether as principal or sureties, or any of them to pay the sums for which they are respectively bound.

106. Execution of forfeiture

If the sum of money which a person is ordered to pay under section 105(2) is not paid either immediately, or within such time as the court appoints, a justice may, without further notice to that person, cause the sum, with the costs of all proceedings rendered necessary by the non-payment, to be levied and recovered by execution against the goods and chattels of that person, and in default of sufficient goods and chattels that person may be imprisoned for 3 months unless the sum adjudged to be paid, and all costs and charges of the execution, and also if the justice thinks fit so to order, of taking and conveying that person to gaol, are sooner paid.

- (2B) If subsection (2A) applies, the court must cause the further and better reasons to be made known to the parties to the notice to review as soon as practicable after they have been furnished to the court and, in any event, before the court proceeds to do anything under subsection (2).
